Annual Convention of the United States

Hotelmen's Association. DETROIT, May 10 .- The United States Hotelmen's association met in the council chamber of the city hall at 3 p. m. today and was called to order by President Rossels of Washington, D. C. The association was organized two year ago at Saratoga and a constitution and by-laws were adopted one year ago at Cleveland. It has grown rapidly during the past year and now repre-sents 50,000 hotels in every state and territory. About 100 members were present today, and reports of the president, secretary and treasurer showed the association's affairs to be in prosperous condition. The only business of importance transaction was the election of officers, as follows: President, D. Clifton Shears, Cincinnati; vice president, F. S. Ristine, Boston; scoretary-treasurer, W. A. Roskrauz, Albany, N. Y.; also a vice president from each state. The local arrangenents for the convention throw int the shade anything of the kind which has ever before been altempted in this city. The Russell House, as headquarters, is transformed into a bower of floral magnificence, and other hotels are appropriately decorated. Detroi never harbored a more jolly crowd within her walls than the delegates to this meeting. The botel papers are re-presented by D. N. Thayer of the New York Hotel Mail; H. J. Rohn, Chicago Hotel World; F. W. Rice, National Hotel Reporter, Chicago, and John Martin, Hotel Gazette, New York. RED MEN'S GRAND COUNCIL.

Owing to Green's previous character, which had always been good, a petition for elemency was signed by those who had known him since boyhood. Judge Moore, notwithstanding this fact and the fact that the respondent was well connected and had been one of has boyhood friends, sentenced him to the state prison at Jackson for 10 years.

Wants Cheaper Gas.

LANSING, May 10 .- A motion for a mandamus in the case of Keenan e Jann of Detroit against the Michigas Gas company was argued in the si-preme court today. The plaintiff want the court to compel the company to fürnish them natural gas for il nating purposes at 33 cents a thousand, as the charter provides that this is to be the price charged for the gas. The defendants claim, however, that this price is only prescribed when the cas is used for fuel purposes and that it has right to charge $1.25 a then and for light. The decision was reserved.

[Copyright, 1601, by American Press Associa-tion.] Here is a design which illustrates how a aquare house may be designed so as to have a presty exterior. There is no doubt that a simple rectangular system of laying out rooms is most economical, and the old Colonial style of architecture, with its gable roof, modest moidings and details, is particularly adapted to simplicity of architecture in the plane.

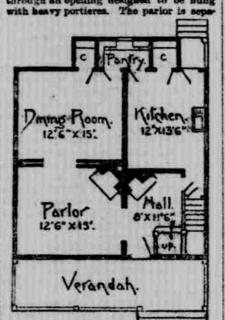

PERSPECTIVE VIEW

By a proper disposition of parts and suitation of colors we are enabled to secure both convenience and beauty. To me there is a charm about all that relates to old Colonial days. The architecture of our grandfathers was appropriate to their modes of life and should be perpetuated with their memories.

In the illustration here given there are four rooms in the first story, with pantry and closets; the half is of good size and and closets; the half is of good size and may be used as a sitting room. The special feature of this room is a handsome staircase and a pretty mantel. From the half you enter the kitchen through a small vestibule or alcove under the main stairs. This prevents persons from seeing directly into the kitchen and keeps the smell of cooking from entering the half to a great extent.

From the front hall you enter the parior through an opening designed to be hung with heavy portieres. The parlor is separated from the dining room by sliding doors, which may also be kept open, and the tween half and parlor.

PIRST STORY.

The diring room is provided with a good sized china closet; the kischen likewise is sized china closet; the kitchen likewise is equipped with a store closet, portains rapge, sink and beiler. The closets are all fitted with shelves, and the pantry is provided with drawers for cutlery, neal and flour bins, shelves, etc., complete.

In the second story are two good sized chambers, two small bedrooms and a bathroom, with closets for each. There is also reom, with closets for each. There is also a small storeroom in the attic reached by means of a ladder in the second story hall.

A cellar extends under the whole building, 6% feet in depth. The foundation walls are of stone, and the chimney of hard brick. The building is properly framed, braced and sheathed with tongued and grooved stuff. The lower part of the exterior walls is covered with paper and white pine clapboards; second story and roofs shingled.

The interior walls and ceilings are hard finished on one coat of brown mortar and seasoned lath. All woodwork is of North Carolina pite, except the doors and floors in first and second stories, which are of yellow pine for the former and white pine for the latter. Inside woodwork has two coats of varnish, all exterior work two coats of paint.

The plumbing of the bathroom is not included in the estimate. The entire work, with the above exceptions, can be completed for $1,900 in most localities. D. W. KING.

His Method.

A good teacher never begins his work by impressing his pupils with a discour-aging sense of his own knowledge as compared with their ignorance. He knows a better way than that. "How d'ye take t' th' new teacher ye're got daewn t' No. 9. Billy" inquired Mr. Eben Hobbs of his fourteen year-old nephew, not long after the commencement of the "fell term."

"Posty ta'r t' middiin scholar, I guess ne is," replied Billy diplomatically. Why, in course, I calllate he'd hev t' be t'hold sech a p'aition as he doce," re-aponded Mr. Hobbs. "But what I mean is, hanw much be ye goin t' learn fr'm the chap? Why, Uncle Eb," said the boy with a shreard smile on his freekled face, "it don't appear t' be no special coount what we boys an gale git t' know, s'or's I ken see. The main p'int is for as 't git where we'll just be bacwed daown re'llain what a hosp he knows. An when he's learns as that much I guess he'll quit Yo. 9 an light acut for nother school."—

Unprecedented Horse Sale. On Saturday, May 14, at 10 o'clock a. m., the Consolidated Street Car company will put up at auction fifty of its best horses, all of which will be posi-tively sold to the highest bidder. The sale is made to dispose of stock which is rendered useless by the recent overation of West Side lines by the electric method. These horses are all in prime condition, are sound in wind and limb are good travelers, and were bought with reference to performing the severe service of street car service. They are far above the average service horse in all particulars. They are just the kind of stock that will best furnish the best general-purpose horse. Farmers, teamsters, and others, should not mies this opportunity of securing a good horse or a good pair. The sale will take place at Shavers' livery stable, on Kent street, between Bridge street and Crescent avenue.
